Industrial Design

Industrial Design is the professional practice of designing products that are to be manufactured through mass production. It's a strategic problem-solving process that focuses on optimizing the function, value, and appearance of products for both the user and the manufacturer.

Minimalist Design

Incorporating eco-friendly materials, energy-efficient solutions, and ergonomic principles to create healthier, more comfortable, and environmentally responsible spaces.

°02

Home Interior

From flooring and wall coverings to countertops and textiles, the choices of materials greatly influence the space's aesthetic and durability.

Office Interior

Optimizing layouts for different work zones (e.g., individual workstations, meeting rooms, collaborative areas, break rooms) to maximize efficiency and flow.

Let's Take A Break

A Design Consultant is a professional who provides expert advice and strategic guidance on design-related matters. Unlike a designer who might execute the design work themselves, a consultant typically focuses on the "what" and "why" of design, rather than just the "how."

La-Interia

Optimizing layouts for different work zones (individual workstations, meeting rooms, collaborative areas, break rooms) to maximize efficiency and flow.
